Why UNIDO was established

- Many developing countries gained independence, national authorities regained legitimate control over domestic resources, chartered a new course of economic progress.
- Global political uncertainty - the world divided by the Cold War.
- Growing reliance on local assets; manufacturing seen as a key vehicle of economic development.
- Transformation of minerals and agricultural crops creates value, generates employment, foreign exchange, supplies local markets with consumer goods.
- A dedicated UN Agency – a neutral access to industrial partnership, for access to markets, technology and know-how.

UNIDO today: Partner for Prosperity

UNIDO's mission is to reduce poverty through sustainable industrial development.

We want every country to have the opportunity to grow a flourishing productive sector, to increase their participation in international trade, and to safeguard their environment.

Three thematic priorities

Poverty reduction through productive activities

Trade capacity-building

Energy and Environment

Two core functions:

- Normative services: UNIDO generates and disseminates knowledge related to industry and provides a platform to enhance cooperation, establish dialogue and develop partnerships
- Technical cooperation: UNIDO designs/implements knowledge-based programmes to support its clients. It also offers tailor-made specialized programme development support.

(experience gained in the technical cooperation is shared with policy makers; UNIDO's analytical work helps define priorities)

Growth with Quality

Growth with Quality means that we continuously improve and grow all our services, which are multidisciplinary and positively transform policies and institutions worldwide.

- We offer solutions: Bring global expertise and experience to address complex development challenges through integrated and high-impact services.
- We are flexible: Differentiate and adapt our approaches and methodologies according to the needs of countries at different stages of development.
- We expand our services: Widen our geographic scope and increase our delivery volume to serve more countries and people.
- We ensure effectiveness: Measure the impact that our services have on development in order to ensure the best possible results.

Delivering as One

Delivering as One means that we are united in purpose and actions.

We build our people.

We serve our stakeholders.

We lead by example.

We manage efficiently.

Thank you
